Executive Vice President

MEMORANDUM

FROM: David L. Cohen
RE: Comcast/Time Warner Cable Announcement
DATE: February 13, 2014

This morning, Comcast and Time Warner Cable announced a transaction that will combine the cable assets of Time Warner Cable with those of Comcast. This is a friendly transaction, forged in a dynamic and robustly competitive landscape. The transaction is strongly pro-competitive and is firmly in the public interest. The details of the transaction are summarized in the accompanying press release and fact sheet.

As a company that is focused on driving innovation and responding to an intensely competitive environment with superior value and service, Comcast is excited to have the opportunity to manage these assets and bring the benefits of Comcast's industry-leading technology, user experience, and broadband service to millions of additional customers. It was just these exciting possibilities that led to the discussions between Time Warner Cable and Comcast and to the suggestion by many of our shareholders that we pursue a transaction to create this new company with such great promise for our customers and shareholders.

With this acquisition, Comcast intends to build on our extraordinarily successful acquisition of NBCUniversal, and our unparalleled record of keeping our promises to bring new benefits to consumers in prior acquisitions.

While we believe that this transaction is, and will be determined to be, pro-competitive, pro-consumer, and strongly in the public interest when we make our case and seek approval from federal regulators, we recognize that certain competitive concerns might be raised about consolidation of these assets under one roof.

But we strongly believe that these competitive concerns are already addressed, not only by the highly competitive marketplace in which the new company will vigorously compete for subscribers, but also by existing rules and regulations, as well as the binding conditions and requirements already in place as a result of the approval of the Comcast/NBCUniversal transaction. Several of these conditions will automatically extend to the acquired systems upon the approval and consummation of this transaction, and they ensure substantial protections and benefits, including:

- Broadcast stations in the acquired markets will have greater protections in their retransmission consent negotiations with the acquired systems. Among other things, NBC affiliate market integrity in these markets would be protected, and Comcast's negotiations with broadcast stations would be without influence by NBCUniversal's retransmission consent or affiliate negotiations.

- PEG channels would be protected from migration to digital in the acquired systems that are not yet all-digital (unless otherwise agreed by the LFA), and would be protected from material degradation.
- The FCC's Open Internet protections will be extended to millions of additional broadband customers, irrespective of whether the FCC re-establishes such protections for other industry participants. Thus, unlike all other broadband subscribers in the country, the new company's broadband customers will enjoy the enforceable protections of the no blocking and non-discrimination rules that were put in place by the FCC, notwithstanding the action by the DC Circuit Court of Appeals vacating those rules.
- Affordable standalone broadband service will be made available and marketed in the acquired systems.
- The acquired systems' broadband service will be upgraded to meet minimum speeds in all DOCSIS 3.0 markets.
- The acquired programming networks from Time Warner Cable that Comcast will control post-closing – though modest – will be subject to the Comcast/NBCUniversal program access framework. As a result, MVPDs would have the right to include these programming networks in an arbitration demand in appropriate circumstances, and the acquired RSNs would be subject to standalone arbitration as an alternative remedy to the FCC's program access rules.
- OVDs could demand (and if necessary, arbitrate over) these newly acquired networks if the OVDs meet the relevant criteria. In addition, the acquired systems would be subject to prohibitions against practices that unduly influence or unfairly limit the provision of the acquired programming to OVDs.
- Finally, the FCC would have significant data at its disposal as to these and other requirements as a result of the company's required Annual Compliance Reporting.

The inherent benefits of this combination, together with these and other automatic protections and guarantees, should be more than sufficient to allay any concerns that this transaction is not in the public interest. Yet Comcast is prepared to do more. Below, we outline a few of the key undertakings we intend to include and expand upon in our public interest filing with the Federal Communications Commission and with the relevant antitrust agency as appropriate. We look forward to the opportunity to make our case to the agencies in detail in the near future.

1. Comcast is prepared to divest systems totaling approximately 3 million subscribers, such that Comcast's managed systems will serve residential subscribers at a level below the FCC's vacated horizontal ownership limit of 30 percent of all national multichannel video programming subscribers. In a far less competitive market than today, the Court of Appeals twice did not accept 30 percent as a reasonable limit on a single cable company's size. In today's market, with national telephone and satellite competitors growing substantially, with Google having launched its 1 GB Google Fiber offering in a number of markets across the country, and consumers having more choice of pay TV providers than ever before, Comcast believes that there can be no justification for denying the company the additional scale that will help it compete more effectively.

2. Comcast is prepared to extend certain commitments it made in the NBCUniversal transaction to the acquired systems, including:
 - Extending Comcast's commitment to making available diverse, local news, and children's programming on various platforms in the cable systems we are acquiring from Time Warner Cable; and
 - Extending to the acquired systems Comcast's guaranteed carriage of non-commercial educational stations that have must-carry rights and have relinquished their broadcast spectrum.
3. Comcast is also prepared to build upon its very successful program for broadband adoption, by extending our industry-leading broadband adoption and digital literacy programs to low-income subscribers in the acquired systems.
4. And Comcast is prepared to extend its best-in-class diversity program to the acquired Time Warner Cable systems, covering diversity in employment, supplier diversity, programming diversity, and community investment diversity.

We are glad to have the opportunity to share our news with you, and we invite your questions or comments.

TIME WARNER CABLE TO MERGE WITH COMCAST CORPORATION TO CREATE A WORLD-CLASS TECHNOLOGY AND MEDIA COMPANY

Strategic Combination Will Accelerate Delivery of Comcast's Technologically Advanced Products and Services to Time Warner Cable's Customers

Transaction Creates Multiple Pro-Consumer and Pro-Competitive Benefits, Including for Small and Medium-Sized Businesses

PHILADELPHIA and NEW YORK – (February 13, 2014) -- Comcast Corporation (Nasdaq: CMCSA, CMCSK) and Time Warner Cable (NYSE: TWC) today announced that their Boards of Directors have approved a definitive agreement for Time Warner Cable to merge with Comcast. The agreement is a friendly, stock-for-stock transaction in which Comcast will acquire 100 percent of Time Warner Cable's 284.9 million shares outstanding for shares of CMCSA amounting to approximately $45.2 billion in equity value. Each Time Warner Cable share will be exchanged for 2.875 shares of CMCSA, equal to Time Warner Cable shareholders owning approximately 23 percent of Comcast's common stock, with a value to Time Warner Cable shareholders of approximately $158.82 per share based on the last closing price of Comcast shares. The transaction will generate approximately $1.5 billion in operating efficiencies and will be accretive to Comcast's free cash flow per share while preserving balance sheet strength. The merger will also be tax free to Time Warner Cable shareholders.

This transaction will create a leading technology and innovation company, differentiated by its ability to deliver ground-breaking products on a superior network while leveraging a national platform to create operating efficiencies and economies of scale.

"The combination of Time Warner Cable and Comcast creates an exciting opportunity for our company, for our customers, and for our shareholders," said Brian L. Roberts, Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, Comcast Corporation. "In addition to creating a world-class company, this is a compelling financial and strategic transaction for our shareholders. Also, it is our intention to expand our buyback program by an additional $10 billion at the close of the transaction. We believe there are meaningful operational efficiencies and the adjusted purchase multiple is approximately 6.7x Operating Cash Flow. This transaction will be accretive and will yield many synergies and benefits in the years ahead. Rob Marcus and his team have created a pure-play cable company that, combined with Comcast, has the foundation for future growth. We are looking forward to working with his team as we bring our companies together to deliver the most innovative products and services and a superior customer experience within the highly competitive and dynamic marketplace in which we operate."

"This combination creates a company that delivers maximum value for our shareholders, enormous opportunities for our employees and a superior experience for our customers," said Robert D. Marcus, Chairman and CEO of Time Warner Cable. "Comcast and Time Warner Cable have been the leaders in all of the industry's most important innovations of the last 25 years and this merger will accelerate the pace of that innovation. Brian Roberts, Neil Smit, Michael Angelakis and the Comcast management team have built an industry-leading platform and innovative products and services, and we're excited to be part of delivering all of the possibilities of cable's superior broadband networks to more American consumers."

The new cable company, which will be led by President and CEO Neil Smit, will generate multiple pro-consumer and pro-competitive benefits, including an accelerated deployment of existing and new innovative products and services for millions of customers. Comcast's subscribers today have access to the most comprehensive video experience, including the cloud-based X1 Entertainment Operating System, plus 50,000 video on demand choices on television, 300,000 plus streaming choices on XfinityTV.com, Xfinity TV mobile apps that offer 35 live streaming channels plus the ability to download to watch offline later, and the newly launched X1 cloud DVR. Comcast is also a technology leader in broadband and has increased Internet speeds 12 times in the past 12 years across its entire footprint.

Time Warner Cable owns cable systems located in key geographic areas, including New York City, Southern California, Texas, the Carolinas, Ohio, and Wisconsin. Time Warner Cable will combine its unique products and services with Comcast's, including StartOver, which allows customers to restart a live program in progress to the beginning, and LookBack, which allows customers to watch programs up to three days after they air live, all without a DVR. Time Warner Cable also has been a leader in the deployment of community Wi-Fi, and will combine its more than 30,000 hotspots, primarily in Los Angeles and New York City, and its in-home management system, IntelligentHome, with Comcast's offerings.

Through this merger, more American consumers will benefit from technological innovations, including a superior video experience, higher broadband speeds, and the fastest in-home Wi-Fi. The transaction also will generate significant cost savings and other efficiencies. American businesses will benefit from a broader platform, and the Company will be better able to offer advanced services like high-performance point-to-point and multi-point Ethernet services and cloud-based managed services to enterprises. Additionally, the transaction will combine complementary advertising platforms and channels and allow Comcast to offer broader and more valuable packages to national advertisers.

Through the merger, Comcast will acquire Time Warner Cable's approximately 11 million managed subscribers. In order to reduce competitive concerns, Comcast is prepared to divest systems serving approximately 3 million managed subscribers. As such, Comcast will, through the acquisition and management of Time Warner Cable systems, net approximately 8 million managed subscribers in this transaction. This will bring Comcast's managed subscriber total to approximately 30 million. Following the transaction, Comcast's share of managed subscribers will remain below 30 percent of the total number of MVPD subscribers in the U.S. and will be essentially equivalent to Comcast Cable's subscriber share after its completion of both the 2002 AT&T Broadband transaction and the 2006 Adelphia transaction.

The companies said the merger agreement between Comcast and Time Warner Cable is subject to shareholder approval at both companies and regulatory review and other customary conditions and is expected to close by the end of 2014.

PUBLIC INTEREST BENEFITS SUMMARY

Comcast's merger with Time Warner Cable will ensure that a responsible and committed steward delivers advanced video and high-speed data services and innovation to these customers. The proposed transaction is pro-consumer, pro-competitive, strongly in the public interest, and approvable. It will deliver better services and technology to Time Warner Cable's subscribers and result in no reduction of choice for consumers. Following the acquisition and possible divestiture of some subscribers, Comcast subscribers will represent essentially the same share of nationwide MVPD subscribers as Comcast's shares following the Adelphia and AT&T Broadband transactions in a much more competitive and dynamic marketplace. This transaction will create a world-class technology and media company, differentiated by its ability to deliver ground-breaking products on a superior network while leveraging a national platform to create operating efficiencies and economies of scale.

- Transaction Overview

- Comcast will merge with Time Warner Cable in a stock-for-stock transaction in which Comcast will acquire 100 percent of Time Warner Cable's 284.9 million shares outstanding for shares of CMCSA amounting to approximately $45.2 billion in equity value. This is a friendly transaction that will create a leading technology and innovation company with a national reach. It will provide exciting consumer benefits and sufficient scale to improve competition between Comcast and national competitors, and bring greater competition to the business and advertising markets.
- Comcast is prepared to divest cable systems serving approximately 3 million managed subscribers.
- Following the acquisition and divestitures, Comcast will gain roughly 8 million subscribers, bringing Comcast's managed subscriber total to approximately 30 million. The share of the total number of MVPD subscribers in the U.S. represented by Comcast-managed subscribers will be below the FCC's 30% ownership cap that was vacated by the D.C. Circuit.
- Comcast and Time Warner Cable shareholders have both strongly advocated for this transaction because of the exciting prospects of combining the two companies, including the unique opportunity it presents to create a pro-consumer cable competitor.

- Comcast's merger with Time Warner Cable is pro-consumer, pro-competitive, and will generate substantial public interest benefits

- Comcast is a technology leader in broadband, so customers will benefit from its commitment to invest in its high-speed data services.
 - Comcast has increased Internet speeds 12 times in the past 12 years across its entire footprint.
 - Comcast led the industry in the deployment of DOCSIS 3.0.
 - Additionally, Comcast has invested tens of billions of dollars in its network and continues to invest in it. Comcast will be investing hundreds of millions of dollars annually to improve Time Warner Cable's networks, which will bring significant benefits to Time Warner Cable customers, including higher Internet speeds and greater reliability.
 - According to the FCC and industry sources, Comcast's broadband speeds are consistently higher than Time Warner Cable's. Comcast offers speeds of up to 505 mbps in the Northeast and up to 105 mbps nationally. Time Warner Cable offers up to 50 mbps in most locations and up to 100 mbps in select areas. As a result, subscribers to the cable systems acquired by Comcast will receive more consistently fast HSD service.
 - The proposed transaction will create economies of scale that will facilitate even greater investment in broadband deployment, adoption, speeds, and competition.
- Comcast's merger with Time Warner Cable will also result in the accelerated deployment of advanced technology and the development of new and innovative products and services for millions of customers.
 - Comcast's subscribers today have access to the most comprehensive video experience, no matter how or where they want to watch their favorite content.
 - Subscribers to Time Warner Cable will benefit from Comcast's best-in-class technology and services, including accelerated deployment of advanced technology such as the X1 Entertainment Operating System and Comcast's VOD platform which provides 50,000 choices on TV and averages 400 million views each month (32 billion views since VOD's 2003 launch). Comcast also offers 300,000 plus streaming choices on XfinityTV.com, and Xfinity TV mobile apps that offer 35 live streaming channels plus the ability to download to watch offline later.
 - Time Warner Cable subscribers will also benefit from Comcast's newly launched X1 DVR, which enables customers to watch their entire TV channel lineup and DVR recordings on mobile devices in the home, and download recorded content to take on-the-go.

- Time Warner Cable subscribers will also benefit from improved reliability of service. Comcast has been laser focused on improving customer service and the customer experience and has become the industry leader in service reliability.
 - Comcast is also leading the industry in digital implementation. It has already completed its transition to an all-digital platform, and the transaction will hasten Time Warner Cable's all-digital migration, which is presently only about 17% complete. (Source: SNL Kagan) This will lead to more high-definition content, more VOD offerings, higher broadband speeds, and other new services and consumer benefits.
 - Comcast offers a more robust TV Everywhere experience to its subscribers.
 - Additional consumer benefits arise from the automatic application of certain NBCUniversal Conditions to the cable systems and related assets acquired from Time Warner Cable.
 - The FCC's Open Internet protections will be extended to millions of additional broadband customers, irrespective of whether the FCC re-establishes such protections for other industry participants. Thus, unlike all other broadband subscribers in the country, the new company's broadband customers will enjoy the protections of the no blocking and non-discrimination rules that were put in place by the FCC, notwithstanding the action by the DC Circuit Court of Appeals vacating those rules.
 - Affordable standalone broadband service will be made available and marketed in the acquired systems.
 - Protections for online video distributors will extend to Time Warner Cable content.
 - MVPDs, as well as OVDs, will continue to have defined rights to arbitrate for NBCUniversal programming, which will also include the modest additional controlled programming assets that Comcast acquires from Time Warner Cable.
 - More cable systems and communities will benefit from the public interest commitments in the NBCUniversal transaction – diversity, localism, broadband adoption.
 - Broadcast stations in the acquired markets will have greater protection in their retransmission consent negotiations with Comcast in the acquired systems.
 - The merger will increase Comcast's ability to offer advanced services, like high-performance point-to-point and multi-point Ethernet services with the capacity to deliver cloud computing, to small and medium-sized businesses, as well as backhaul services to wireless carriers, and to be a better competitor in the market to deliver such services.
 - In addition, Comcast will be able to bring to Time Warner Cable business customers enhancements to their package of services that Time Warner Cable does not offer (e.g., hosted voice).
 - This transaction will be particularly meaningful to super regional businesses (in greater New York South Carolina, and other markets) with facilities or offices that span both the Comcast and Time Warner Cable footprints. Until now, these regional businesses have not been able to benefit from seamless products and services and previously may have had two accounts. This transaction will provide many operational and cost efficiencies to these businesses.
 - The merger will generate significant cost savings and other efficiencies, which will ultimately benefit customers.
 - The merger will combine complementary advertising platforms and channels and allow Comcast to offer broader and more valuable packages to advertisers, making it a more formidable competitor to national advertising outlets.
 - The national scale created by this merger will improve Comcast's ability to compete against its national competitors like DirecTV and DISH, as well as telcos like Verizon and AT&T.
- The proposed transaction will not reduce competition in any relevant market, and the MVPD marketplace is more competitive now than ever before
- Because Comcast and Time Warner Cable do not currently compete to serve customers, there will be no change in market share in local markets for video, high-speed data, and voice. And, there will be no impact on the competitiveness of other MVPDs, including DirecTV, DISH, Verizon, AT&T, and other cable companies, because they will still be competing with the same number of competitors in each market in which they operate. This absence of horizontal overlap means that the transaction will not harm competition or reduce consumers' choice in any way.
 - Today, the MVPD market is even more competitive than it was when the AT&T Broadband and Adelphia transactions were approved by regulators.
 - Satellite companies have taken share from traditional cable companies, and the vigorous new entrants like Verizon FiOS and AT&T U-verse have also entered the video and broadband space. Google has also introduced Google Fiber in a number of markets across the country.

- Since 2005, satellite subscribers have grown by 7.0 million subscribers; telco subscribers have grown by 10.7 million subscribers; while cable subscribers have declined by 10.4 million subscribers. (Source: SNL Kagan)
- A number of online businesses like Apple, Google, Amazon, Hulu, Netflix, and a host of smaller companies are entering the online video space and trying to position themselves as competitors. While we view online businesses as complementary to our business, previous antitrust concerns about further cable consolidation are truly antiquated in light of today's marketplace realities.
- Courts have recognized that Comcast is not a "bottleneck" for video programming given the emergence of vigorous competition in the MVPD marketplace over the last decade.
- Moreover, many of the systems that Comcast is acquiring from Time Warner Cable (including the largest ones in NYC and LA) are in highly competitive local MVPD markets.
- There will be only a very limited addition to Comcast's programming assets.
- There is a wide array of FCC and antitrust rules and conditions from the NBCUniversal transaction in place that more than adequately address any potential vertical foreclosure concerns in the area of video programming.

PRO-CONSUMER, PRO-COMPETITIVE, APPROVABLE

COMCAST AND TIME WARNER CABLE TRANSACTION FACT SHEET

Deal Structure

- Comcast and Time Warner Cable have reached a friendly agreement pursuant to which Comcast will merge with Time Warner Cable and acquire its approximately 11 million managed subscribers. In order to reduce competitive concerns, Comcast is prepared to divest systems serving approximately 3 million managed subscribers. In addition, Comcast will acquire DukeNet Communications and Time Warner Cable's two regional sports networks in Los Angeles, its 26.8% stake of Sterling Entertainment Enterprises, LLC (doing business as SportsNet New York), and its 52 news and local programming channels, including Time Warner Cable News NY1 in New York City. Comcast will acquire these assets in a stock for stock transaction in which Comcast will acquire 100 percent of Time Warner Cable's 284.9 million shares outstanding for shares of CMCSA amounting to approximately $45.2 billion in equity value.
- This transaction will create a world-class technology and media company, differentiated by its ability to deliver ground-breaking products on a superior network while leveraging a national platform to create operating efficiencies and economies of scale. The exciting, pro-consumer benefits of creating this new company are what led Time Warner Cable and Comcast to enter into discussions, and what led shareholders of both companies to encourage this combination. This transaction is, and will be determined to be, pro-consumer, pro-competitive, strongly in the public interest, and approvable.
- Post divestiture, Comcast will, through the acquisition and management of Time Warner Cable systems, net approximately 8 million managed subscribers in this transaction. This will bring Comcast's managed subscriber total to approximately 30 million. Following the transaction, Comcast's share of managed subscribers will remain below 30 percent of the total number of MVPD subscribers in the U.S. and will be essentially equivalent to Comcast Cable's subscriber share after its completion of both the 2002 AT&T Broadband transaction and the 2006 Adelphia transaction.

Combination Advantages

- Deployment and Development of Advanced Services: This transaction will result in the accelerated deployment of Comcast's advanced technology and the development of new and innovative products and services. Comcast's subscribers today have access to the most comprehensive video experience, no matter how or where they want to watch their favorite content. Subscribers to Time Warner Cable will benefit from Comcast's best-in-class technology and services, such as the X1 Entertainment Operating System and Comcast's VOD platform which provides 50,000 choices on TV and averages 400 million views each month (32 billion views since VOD's 2003 launch). Comcast also offers 300,000 plus streaming choices on XfinityTV.com, and Xfinity TV mobile apps that offer 35 live streaming channels plus the ability to download to watch offline later. Time Warner Cable subscribers will also benefit from Comcast's newly launched X1 DVR, which enables customers to watch their entire TV channel lineup and DVR recordings on mobile devices in the home, and download recorded content to take on-the-go. These subscribers will also benefit from higher broadband speeds and the fastest in-home Wi-Fi, as well as from improved reliability of service. Comcast has been laser focused on improving customer service and the customer experience and has become the industry leader in service reliability.

- Benefits of Scale: The transaction will generate significant cost savings and other efficiencies, which will ultimately benefit customers. Scale enables better customer experiences as demonstrated by Comcast. Comcast's scale has enabled the company to create industry leading products like the X1 Entertainment Operating System, increased Internet speeds, comprehensive communications and digital phone products and features, and home management. The national scale created by this merger will improve Comcast's ability to compete against its national competitors like DirecTV and DISH, as well as telcos like Verizon and AT&T.
- Broadband Market Benefits: Comcast is a technology leader in broadband and customers will benefit from its commitment to invest in its high-speed data services. Comcast has increased Internet speeds 12 times in the past 12 years across its entire footprint, and led the industry in the deployment of DOCSIS 3.0. Additionally, Comcast has invested tens of billions of dollars in its network and continues to invest in it, which will bring more deployment, more adoption, and more competition to the broadband market. Comcast will be investing hundreds of millions of dollars annually to improve Time Warner Cable's networks, which will bring significant benefits to Time Warner Cable customers, including higher speeds and greater reliability. According to the FCC and industry sources, Comcast's broadband speeds are consistently higher than Time Warner Cable's. Comcast offers speeds of up to 505 mbps in the Northeast and up to 105 mbps nationally. Time Warner Cable offers up to 50 mbps in most locations and up to 100 mbps in select areas.
- Benefits for Enterprise Customers: This transaction will allow Comcast increased ability to offer advanced services, like high-performance point-to-point and multi-point Ethernet services with the capacity to deliver cloud computing, to small and medium-size businesses, as well as backhaul services to wireless carriers. In addition, Comcast will be able to bring to Time Warner Cable business customers enhancements to their package of services that Time Warner Cable does not offer (e.g., hosted voice). Many of the cable systems being acquired by Comcast "fill-in" gaps in our existing service area and add service areas in New York City and Los Angeles. This transaction will be particularly meaningful to super regional businesses (in the NYC, LA, and other markets) with facilities or offices that span both the Comcast and Time Warner footprint. Until now, these regional businesses have not been able to benefit from seamless products and services and previously may have had two accounts. This transaction will provide many operational and cost efficiencies to these businesses. The new additional markets will also allow for synergies and enhanced investment returns, thereby promoting further development of these competitive services.
- Benefits in Advertising: The transaction will combine complementary advertising platforms and channels and allow Comcast to offer broader and more valuable packages to advertisers. This is especially true in the very competitive and uniquely important New York advertising market. By having additional cable systems in additional markets, Comcast would be a more formidable competitor to national advertising outlets, like national cable networks, online ads, satellite operators, etc.
- Competitive Benefits: This transaction would lead to the creation of a leading technology and innovation company that will provide exciting consumer benefits and sufficient scale to improve competition between Comcast and more national competitors and in the business and advertising markets. Comcast and Time Warner Cable do not compete to serve customers – either for video, high-speed Internet, or voice services. Instead, they serve distinct geographic footprints. This absence of horizontal overlap in local markets means that the transaction will not harm competition or reduce consumers' choice in any way. And, there will be no impact on the competitiveness of other MVPDs, including DirecTV, DISH, Verizon, AT&T, and other cable companies, because they will still be competing with the same number of competitors in each market in which they operate.

Financially Accretive

- The agreement is a friendly, stock-for-stock transaction in which Comcast will acquire 100 percent of Time Warner Cable's 284.9 million shares outstanding for shares of CMCSA amounting to approximately $45.2 billion in equity value.

- Each Time Warner Cable share will be exchanged for 2.875 shares of CMCSA, equal to Time Warner Cable shareholders owning approximately 23 percent of Comcast's common stock, with a value to Time Warner Cable shareholders of approximately $158.82 per share based on the last closing price of Comcast shares.
- The transaction will be accretive to free cash flow per share beginning in year one while preserving balance sheet strength.
- Meaningful operating efficiencies beginning in year one. Run-rate synergies will be roughly $1.5 billion in operating expenditures and $400 million in capital expenditures. Target for realizing full synergy impact is three years from closing but we believe it will be front loaded with 50% in year one.
- The merger will be tax free to Time Warner Cable shareholders.
